

Social Events of the Year

THE first party of the year, put on by the Hi-Y, was held in November and was very well attended. Cornstalks were the most noticeable feature of the novel decorations, and Robinson's orchestra furnished music.

The annual athletic party, given in February, was, as usual, one of the best parties of the year. The gymnasium was attractively decorated with flags of different sizes, in honor of Washington's birthday, and Carey's orchestra provided excellent music. The grand march was led by Coach Ziegler and his partner.

There didn't seem to be enough excitement to satisfy the girls this year, so they were inspired with the happy idea of having a costume party. The boys—poor things—were not invited. Some of the costumes were very pretty and original, and the prize was won by Helen Demlow and Mildred Weaver. Robinson's orchestra played. To Miss MacKenzie goes the credit for making the affair the success that it was.

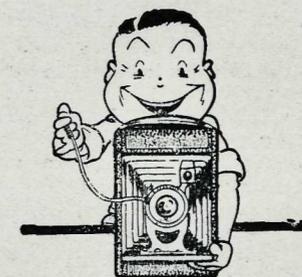

The Sophomores, in spite of limited finances, put on a very attractive party this year. The gym was very pretty and effective with its decorations of brilliant colored crepe paper hanging from around the lights and balcony. Murray Young, class vice-president, and Mildred Weaver led the grand march.

The J-Hop was one of the most successful dances of the year. The color scheme was blue and white, and was beautifully carried out, with crepe paper ribbons draped across the gym and around the lights, giving a lovely, subdued appearance. Carey's Collegians again furnished splendid music. The grand march was led by Jack Pierson, class president, and his partner, Irene Hoffman.

The Senior Class, and indeed the whole High School, is eagerly anticipating the Senior Prom, which is to be held some time in June. This will be the crowning event of the year, and the biggest affair of the entire four years for the class of '25.

Throughout the year the afternoon parties were held every other Friday and did much to liven up school, even though they weren't as well attended as they might have been. Miss MacKenzie was largely responsible for the good music procured.

—Naomi Drury.

THIS year's "Snap" section is bound to give everyone a great deal of pleasure. It is, we believe, the best collection of worth-while snaps ever assembled in the Zookitizam.

Likenesses of friends, classmates, and familiar scenes will bring back the old High School days as nothing else can do. Oh yes! Speaking of familiar scenes, it is our only regret that we have been unable to include a reproduction of the Lion's Den. Pardon us, we meant the Principal's office.

—The Editors.

SNAPS